

Monday, April 13, 2020

“Look up at the stars and not down at your feet. Try to make sense of what you see, and wonder about what makes the universe exist. Be curious.” – Stephen Hawking

Fingerplay!

The snaily-man

Open the link in the blog or refer to the handout in your package sent this week. Children know this one well and likely can show you!

(Landon with new little chick!)

Activity Painting!

In your package you will find a postcard for children to do art on. If you want to try something a little different, first let your child draw on the postcards with crayons, and then go over it with watercolor paint. The effect is rather neat as the wax crayon resists the paint! For another fun effect sprinkle salt on top of the paint while still wet. If you paint with blue the salt absorbs the water and makes for a star like scape.

(Desmond with his paints at home!)

